Georgia Trent – Netball New Zealand

A youth voice is imperative for an organisation such as ESNZ, given that a very large part of our membership base is under 19-years old. There are different schools of thought about how a youth voice should be developed in an organisation, should it be at governance level, should it be a youth council, how do we attract great young people and retain them as leaders in our sport. Netball NZ has led the way in developing a youth pathway to governance and leadership. Georgia Trent is an inspiring young woman who has been intricately involved in the development of this in Netball. The approach of a “voice” designed and developed by the young people in her sport has been shared across other sports now, and the collaboration of Netball NZ in this space has been extraordinary. We are delighted to hear the story about how this works straight from Georgia at our AGA in the hope that ESNZ will be able to learn from her and work towards a similar outcome.

Georgia is currently studying Sports Management in Dunedin and has had multiple roles in Netball as a player, coach and umpire. In the last year, Georgia was appointed to the inaugural NNZ Youth Board and was a part of the co-design process of establishing the purpose and values of the Board. The next phase involved an application to be a part of the NNZ Board and Georgia is currently an active member of the NNZ Board, bringing a youth perspective at all levels of the Netball system. With a vision to “Champion Youth Voice” this then led to a cross code group in the middle of Level 4 with NZ Rugby and NZ Cricket called Game Changers. On top of these roles, Georgia has helped NNZ present to Queensland Netball and is currently contracted to deliver the Women and Girls funded Fast 5 project for Dunedin Netball.
